POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

When the Democratic party was the minority party in California—back in the days before The Great Campaigner, Franklin D. Roosevelt had made "My F-r-i-e-n-d-s" the friends of all New Dealers—the Republican party, except for occasional flare-ups, conducted itself with gentlemanly decorum and figuratively looked down its collective nose at the brawling Bourbons.

In the pre-Rooseveltian era, in fact, when the state conventions of the two parties were held in Sacramento, many of the G.O.P. delegates used to sneak away from their easy-going conclave—and get gallery seats in the Democratic chamber just to see the fireworks. For the Democrats were always good for a scrap, and the more on-lookers, the better they liked it.

But how times have changed!

In this year of 1944, the Democrats have become so bored with peace and harmony, and the comparative lack of action in their Democratic primary, that they've started making side-bets on what will happen in the free-for-all for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator. Some of the Bourbon lads are even said to have changed their registration to Republican so that they could get into the brannigan, but their number is not great.

What has the Democrats fascinated is the prospect of a major explosion in the Republican party. There are reports, for example, that several of the Republican candidates for U. S. senator may denounce the California Republican assembly as a relic of the days of "smoke-filled rooms." That may happen, too, for the Republican assembly, an unofficial body, with sparse membership, has irritated both G.O.P. candidates and the officially-elected Republican County Central committees by its policy of hand-picking candidates for primary endorsements. Many Republican leaders believe the assembly's tactics smack of a period in Republican politics that cost the party loss of public confidence—and they don't want it repeated.

There may be other explosions, too, for the Republicans, sensing a chance to recapture California in November, are in a militant mood. And the May primary, after all, is the proving ground for the general election.

The Democrats, remembering how the Republicans used to shadow-box in public, and do their real fighting in the cloak rooms, can't be blamed for chuckling over the change in the situation. But the Republicans, remembering that they came to grief when things became too dull, are smiling, even as they biff each other in their free-for-all primary.

The Democrats, say the Republicans, may just laugh themselves to death—like the Republicans did before them!

"Essentials of Heroism" Topic At Kiwanis Meet

Rev. D. H. Baldwin addressed the Kiwanis club at Tuesday's meeting on the subject, "Essentials of Heroism."

He stated that a few years ago a contest was sponsored by a wealthy New York man in which high school students completed. The subject was to name, in their own opinion, heroes of history. David Starr Jordon was one of the judges of that contest.

As a basis of judging, the things most considered were (1) nobility of character; (2) devotion to a great cause; (3) constructive work of a permanent nature for humanity. Among those chosen were Pasteur, Lincoln, Columbus, Franklin and a few others.

The point which the speaker brought out was that there were many ways to judge heroism and that there were many kinds of heroism.

John Lynden, chairman of the committee on church cooperation with Kiwanis gave a short reminder on the attendance of members at church.

LBen Howard was a visitor.

Next week Rev. J. H. Bennett will speak on the "Political Democracy of Great Britain Now," and Carl Field will be chairman.

Congressman Jack Anderson to Visit Briefly In District

Congressman Jack Anderson, this district's representative in Washington, arrived in San Jose today ready for a personal tour of the four counties in his district, while the congress is in Easter recess for ten days. Showing signs of fatigue from the strenuous days in the nation's capitol, the congressman said he planned to try for a couple of days of rest on his San Juan ranch before returning again for the reopening of congress.

At his San Jose headquarters, Anderson was greeted by a delegation of friends headed by his field representative and campaign manager Glenn R. Baker, who has planned a series of conferences and public gatherings for the congressman while he is home. Anderson's first words were, "It's sure great to be home again."

During his stay in the district, the congressman plans to spend at least two days conferring with various civic and business groups, and leaders in each county. In addition Baker says he has arranged for several public meetings at which Anderson will report on affairs in Washington.

Sgt. and Mrs. Teddy Cutting are expected to arrive Friday from Denver. Teddy will be on furlough from the hospital where he is an instructor.

Cpl. "Bud" Weeks, technician, attached to the Waycross, Ga., Army air field left Tuesday for his base after a ten-day visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Weeks.

RED CROSS QUOTA $1500 OVER THE TOP

The Red Cross War Fund drive for Campbell district for which a quota of $4500 was set has surpassed that amount so much that it is now over $6000.

However some homes were not contacted due to absence and owing to transportation problems the solicitors could not always make return calls, so if those who were missed want to have a part in this vital work they may mail their contributions to Mrs. E. E. Lanphear who is continuing in the place of Robert Weaver, now in Carmel.

Also, F. H. Cutting has donated one of his pictures to be sold and the proceeds given to the Red Cross. Sealed bids will be received by Mrs. Lanphear at the Campbell hotel, but no bid under $25 will be considered.

TOMORROW'S JOB

There is growing concern here on the coast that since the Pacific war will outlast that in Europe, the eastern war plants will be released before those here, and eastern industry will get the jump on the west in converting to peace uses.

It is not a particularly gratifying prospect, but California is striding manfully ahead with the double objective of measuring up to its status as Pacific arsenal and preparing for what comes after. Today it is well along the right road, it appears, to accomplish both, and stupendous undertakings are in the making.

"Opportunities worthy of Californians" is the designation applied by writer Robert C. Elliott to the immense program of the state reconstruction and reemployment commission, working to stimulate peace time jobs, higher living standards and new commerce here. Billions of dollars worth of business, and jobs for approximately a million new citizens, are the imposing goals set by planned projects for residential building, apparel manufacture, tourist trade and production of new commodities ranging from specialty agricultural crops to drugs, furs and newly perfected by-products of milk, straw, oil and lumber.

It is inescapable that the continuance of the Japanese war after the European fighting is over will leave the main burden on Pacific coast states. But it need not be California's inexorable fate to languish unrequited forever after. The practical projects that are taking shape under the guidance of business leaders who dare to envision and plan them, will aid immeasurably in accomplishing the task at hand today and readying the scene for tomorrow's jobs as well.

WORDS AND MUSIC

One of the remarkable things about this war is the fact that no song has come out of it to compare with the great tunes of World War I such as "Over There" and "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

It goes without saying that a song which is to have a lasting popularity must be more than merely a combination of words and notes. It must express the deep felings and emotions which the war has created.

Of course, we have had war songs galore since the fighting began. Many of them enjoyed popularity—for a time. But how many of them can you readily recall now? Or how many do you think will be remembered when the war is over?

What is the answer? Have our song writers lost their touch? Isn't there a George M. Cohan of today who can with his magic set the nation and the world to singing a song that will endure?

Irving Berlin has given us some catchy medolies in his production, "This is the Army," but are they the lasting type? Possibly his hymn-like "God Bless America" will be the song most identified with this war. Even that, however, was introduced on the radio long before Pearl Harbor.

So, if we are to have a great song written in this war, it looks like the song writers will have to get busy. But it may be that too many writers are too busy fighting to have time for words and music.

APRIL 15 TAXES

Maybe you're just recovering your breath from the March 15 income tax report, but it is already time to get started on your Federal income tax estimate for 1944 and your California income tax report for 1943. Both of these must be in not later than April 15.

You must file a federal estimated income tax report if you are in one of the following classifications: Single and earning $2700 or more annually; married and earning at least $3500; or if you have an annual income of $100 or more from sources other than wages or salary.

If your income for the year is too uncertain to make such an estimate, you are permitted to make your first quarterly payment on the basis of last year's income. Adjustment can be made later in the year when you are able to determine more accurately what your income for 1944 will be.

As to the state tax, remember that exemptions are $2,000 for single persons and $3,500 for married couples plus $400 for each dependent.

The principal thing is to get started immediately with your figures so that you won't develop that "four o'clock shadow" under your eyes during the last night or two before the deadline date.

PAPER SHORTAGE

The fact that a newsprint shortage almost forced the two largest newspapers in Arizona to suspend publication for two days gives us something to think about. Last minute permission from the WPB to borrow newsprint made possible the publication of restricted editions.

Although it was stated that the shortage arose from the failure of the WPB in making paper stock allotments to consider the growth of the territory served by these newspapers, this incident nevertheless serves as a sharp reminder that paper really is scarce.

The acute shortage of paper not only threatens the "regular continuance of military shipments" as WPB Chairman Donald Nelson put it, but it also affects many civilian needs. Retailers—both chain and independent—have found supplies of wrapping paper hard to obtain and some paper products have virtually vanished from the market. In some instances, the paper shortage has forced curtailment of newspaper advertising space through which retailers present their goods and commodities to the public.

The threatened two-day shutdown of the Arizona papers is important in itself, but it also serves to indicate what might happen on a much larger scale if we allow our paper supplies to get too low.

So when you finish this paper, don't burn it or throw it away—save it. When you have a bundle of papers, turn them over to the local salvage committee. It is all part of the war effort.

BASEBALL

The opening of baseball season is the surest sign of spring. Although many of our best players have gone to war, the youngsters, the oldsters, and the 4F-sters who are still with us can be counted on to produce the best brand of baseball of which they are capable.

The men on the fighting front have often expressed the hope that baseball would continue. To them, it is a refreshing reminder of the days when they sat in the stands and cheered the home team—and booed the umpire. To them it means keeping intact the America they know. The right to enjoy the grand old game is one of the privileges they are fighting for.

FAITH DEFEATS OPPRESSION

"Faith in human nature, in the integrity and worthwhileness of individual men and women, is the necessary basis for free government. Where it is absent, fear rules the hearts of those who have become strong enough to impose their wills on others and fear fashions for itself instruments of oppression. It seeks to justify itself on the plea that people cannot be trusted, that they are stupid and incapable of self-government. Such fear, such distrust of people, found no entry into the hearts and minds of our Founding Fathers."—Commission on American Citizenship of The Catholic University.

NEW "WAR TOOLS"

Engineers of the British army are now using a new type of bridge which can be put together in a few seconds, flung over a river or chasm, and can support the heaviest artillery and transport. It is being used effectively in the Italian campaign. Designed by a British engineer, it is expected to be widely used in peace time construction work. Another improvement in "war tools" is the light-weight extra gas tanks which are now being supplied for our Flying Fortresses under reverse lend-lease. These tanks make possible the flights of our big planes far into Germany and can easily be jettisoned as soon as the gas is used.

Applications for Canning Sugar May be Mailed

All families are entitled to five pounds of canning sugar for each member of the family household. This may be purchased on sugar stamp 40 from ration book 4. Additional canning sugar may be had by application to the west side OPA board. The maximum additional sugar allowed is 20 pounds per person. It is not necessary to go in person to the board for extra canning sugar as the whole transaction may be handled by mail.

The housewife may write to her board for an application for extra canning sugar (R-323). The form itself is much simpler than last year. No advance accounting as to how many quarts will be put up with each pound of sugar is asked for. Nor will it be necessary to mail in ration books with the application. However, spare stamp 37 from book four—a stamp for every member of the family whose name appears on the application — should be attached. Do not hesitate to tear out and mail these stamps to the board, as they will not be good for anything else.

In addition to the canning sugar for home use, as much as 250 pounds per family may be allowed those who can for sale.

S/Sgt. Robert James, wife and baby are here from Pacific Grove and will have their infant baptized Easter Sunday. Robert is still stationed at Fort Ord.

New York Cast In "Blossom Time" at Civic "Aud" Easter

"Blossom Time," the beloved operetta, direct from New York with its original company starring Barbara Scully and others, plays a timely performance in the civic auditorium, San Jose, on Easter Sunday evening, April 9. Pierre de Reedr, who conducted the orchestra in Boston, 1921, in the original performance of "Blossom Time" in America, a production which ran 78 weeks in New York, will conduct the orchestra.

"The Student Prince" plays a week later in the San Jose auditorium, on April 16, starring Everett Marshall, former Metropolitan Opera baritone, with Frank Hornaday, tenor in the role of the Prince, and Marjorie Hayward as Kathie, the waitress. The famous male chorus is said to be greater than ever in this New York Shubert production. "The Drinking Song," "Gaudeamus Igitur," "To the Inn We are Marching," "Deep in My Heart," and many other loved and familiar songs will be heard as sung by the Heidelberg students.

The San Jose concert series will close its season with a brilliant recital by the celebrated Artur Rubinstein, rated as the greatest pianist of the period.

Tickets for all events are on sale at the Denny-Watrous box office, civic auditorium, Columbia 7087.

Navy Offers Rare Opportunities To 17-Year-Olds

Greater opportunities than ever are open to 17-year-old youths in the navy, it was announced today by Raymond G. Callaghan, in charge of the navy recruiting station in the post office building, San Jose.

Among the newer navy programs is the radio technicians school, which, according to Callaghan, prepares young men for highly specialized work in aiding the war effort and at the same time qualifies them for an important field that promises to be in great demand when the war is over.

Seventeen-year-old applicants are selected for this program on the basis of the Eddy test, which is given at the local recruiting station. A minimum of one year of high school algebra is required.

Miss Ellen Wakeman, daughter of the late Mrs. Lucy Wakeman, and a graduate of Campbell high school is visiting her cousins, the Cutting brothers and families here this week. Miss Wakeman is a teacher living at San Gabriel.

Reviews Book At Club Meeting

A large number of members and guests were in attendance at the annual "library tea" given by Campbell Country Woman's club in the community hall Monday. The room was beautifully decorated with huge baskets and bowls of mixed spring flowers, and an interesting display of tulips was on the president's table. Miss Claire Booker, talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Booker, presented three violin solos, brilliantly played, with her mother at the piano. Miss Angie Irwin, a member of the staff of the Santa Clara county library, reviewed a new Latin America travel book, "Grandmother Drives South" by Constance Jordan Henley. She touched briefly on another book on the same subject, "Pan American Highways" by Herbert C. Lanks. Miss Irwin made her talk interesting with a large map of South America, on which she traced the movements of the travellers who were telling the story.

Following the program a dainty tea was served cafeteria style, with Mrs. W. H. Van Dyke and Mrs. Ralph H. Hyde pouring. A silver offering was taken at the door, proceeds of which are to be used to buy reference books for the Campbell library.

During the business session which preceded the program reports on the recent county federation meeting were made by the delegates, and it was announced that Mrs. W. R. Morgan had ben elected trustee in charge of the Student Loan fund.

The committee in charge of the afternoon included Mrs. Guy Farley, Mrs. Ira Grim, Mrs. D. B. Pressler, Mrs. T. T. Cowper, Mrs. B. E. Walton, Mrs. W. I. Merrill and Mrs. S. N. Hedegard. Mrs. Hyde and Mrs. Monica Parr assisted.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

America at war and America at work — fighting and sweating to win a hard-earned victory — is learning lessons which may prove of vast value in returning the country to a sound economic policy during the years of peace.

It is highly improbable, at least, that America, during the next decade, will place much faith in an economy of scarcity such as was foisted on this nation during the decade of depression.

Faced with a bitter war for survival, America has learned that it must literally work out its own salvation—by its own might, its own sweat and its own prodigious production, as well as by the courage and resourcefulness of its men in the armed forces.

America has learned again that there is pride and joy in hard manual labor. And it has learned to pin its faith in all-out production, rather than in Washington cure-alls or government directives.

A few weeks ago, 16 major organized groups, including the principal farm and labor organizations, met at Atlantic City and spent two days discussing the problems which will confront America in the postwar world—and how to meet them. And the declaration of principles and objectives that came out of that gathering leaves little doubt that American labor and American business and American agriculture believe that we must win the peace, just as we are winning the war—by all-out production!

Before reviewing the decisions reached, and the recommendations made, note should be taken of the organizations represented in this post-war planning conference. For the very names of the organizations are indicative of the fact that men and women in many walks of life have learned their common dependence on each other (rather than on government) and are making the first groping steps toward building together for a sound, prosperous America.

Represented at this conference were the American Farm Bureau federation, the American Federation of Labor, the Aeronautical chamber of commerce of America, American Bankers association, American Legion, the United States chamber of commerce, Association of American railroads, the CIO, Investment Bankers Association of America, committee for economic development, Kiwanis International, National Association of Manufacturers, National council of Farm Cooperatives, National grange, National Foreign Trade council, and Rotary International.

After pledging all their resources and facilities to peak production to win the war, the 16 nation-wide organizations made this significant statement of faith and program:

"In addition to recognition of this joint responsibility to the men in the armed forces, the delegates present also recognized their joint responsibility and opportunity to assist in the solution of the many serious problems which confront the nation now and later.

"It is the unanimous conclusion of the conference that the highest degree of prosperity and employment is assured when widespread buying power of the public, based on the production of goods and services, is maintained. It is further agreed that over any long period of time no one group can be prosperous unless the other groups are also prosperous.

"We believe it is possible to make democracy work more effectively by groups getting together voluntarily, as a part of their responsibility to society as a whole. It can be done and we are optimistic as to the future of America. Our economy must be judged by the measure of opportunity it provides for all our citizens.

"Therefore, with reference to post-war objectives for America, we favor:

"An economy of plenty instead of scarcity.

"An opportunity for people to have jobs and increasingly better living standards and educational advantages.

"An opportunity for people to save and invest.

These goals mean that mass unemployment, ruinous farm prices, violent ups and downs in business, monopolistic practices in any field, socialization of business, and a government-planned economy for the nation must be avoided. The desired objectives can be brought about by united cooperative action and understanding among all of the country's major economic groups as producers and consumers."

Reading that, may we not take heart at this evidence of a returning public consciousness that the fundamental social and economic laws of life, learned through the ages of experience, cannot be lightly broken or flaunted by wishful thinking, without grave danger to the nation?

AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF

After being blown through a window by a bursting shell and stunned by a 14-foot fall during the bombardment of Sand Island, Marine Staff Sergeant Dale Lester Peters of Breckenridge, Michigan, struggled to remove large aerial bombs from nearby burning hangars. He has been awarded the Navy Cross for exceptionally meritorious service and disregard of his own safety during this action. What hardships are you willing to disregard to invest in Payroll Savings?

- Use a mild soap or soda for cleaning your refrigerator.
- Defrost whenever freezing compartment has coating ¼" thick.
- Wipe up spilled foods at once.
- Do not put hot foods into the refrigerator.
- Store foods properly and do not overcrowd the shelves.

THE TIME is now, as Spring is here and bountiful Summer approaches, to "service up" your refrigerator. Wash it thoroughly inside and out so that it will be sweet and clean for fresh food storage. Carefully give it soothing drops of oil where needed. Whisk out dirt and dust from the mechanism with a handbrush and dust rag. And of course, never let frost "choke up" freezing compartment. You MUST depend on your present refrigerator to take care of food for the hot summer days ahead. If repair is necessary, have it done now before the summer rush.
